BUSN 150 : Introduction to Business Computing

Introduces the role of computers in the evolution of an information-based society. Reviews history and need for information processing, the basic information processing cycle and functions, processing capabilities of computers, system development, and program development. Provides students with experience in an operating system and business applications, such as word processing, database management, spreadsheets, and presentation software.

Credits 3
Lecture Hours 45
Teaching Equivalent 3.00
Recommended Prep
BUSN 50 or 121.